“It takes commitment and a willingness to be open and candid about yourself and your career experiences – and to provide honest feedback to those you mentor. Mentoring, coaching and role modeling are all absolutely vital activities in the growth and development of individuals. But it is also critical to the collective we know as ‘healthcare,’ one of the most difficult-to-manage industries. It’s our job, it’s our responsibility and it makes good business sense.”
 Richard D. Cordova, President and CEO of Children’s Hospital in Los Angeles
